

First Nations Health Support Officer, Alice Springs

- This position is for a First Nations person
- Based in Alice Springs with travel to outstations and on country required
- Competitive remuneration, plus generous salary packaging benefits & 'bonus' leave
- Full-time 12 month fixed term contract

About Us

Children's Ground is working to create an environment where families realise their aspirations for the next generation of children to be free from trauma and suffering, enjoy equity and safety, be able to grow into adulthood happy and healthy, and have agency over their social, cultural, political and economic life. To learn more about Children's Ground and the work we do, visit our website: <https://www.childrenground.org.au>

About the Job

The Health Support Officer will work with children, young people, elders and families to promote family health and wellbeing and to address key health concerns identified in the community. The position will provide information in first language and will work with western health promotion staff to support individual control and understanding over health concerns.

About You

You will identify as a First Nations person with language skills, preferably in Arrernte (western, central and/or eastern) or any other central desert language, with a strong understanding of traditional and western health.

We invite you to walk with us on this unique journey...

Please apply via Seek where you will be asked to upload your response to the key selection criteria in the position description and your current resume.

www.seek.com.au/job/60455210

Your pitch should tell us more about who you are, what you are passionate about, what interests you about the role and why you may be a good fit for Children's Ground and this position, along with your current resume.

Applications close 5pm 1 March 2023.